Our City Comment & discussion

The Civic Center
in its Cultural Aspects

At the present time several different organizations have appointed committees to study over the civic center proposition, especially the proposed city purchase of the old high school plant to be used for this purpose.

In giving consideration to this subject first in importance comes the need of the community for a civic center.

We are quite sure that a great majority of our citizens recognize that Glendale has been lax in providing utilities to be used for recreational purposes by not only our youths but the citizens in general. The lack of these facilities drives our people to seek recreation elsewhere. Glendale has always guarded carefully the morals of the community but its effective guardianship is lost when we force citizens to go to other communities who are more lax in law enforcement.

As we see it the old high school ground is the last centrally located available site for use as a civic center and unless it is secured for this purpose we will have to go considerable distance from the center of things for a site. It is ideally located for a civic center but poorly located for school purposes.

TODAY the citizens of Pasadena are voting on the same proposition and from the information we gather they will probably vote favorably. Nothing definite has been learned as to amount the site can be purchased for but we think a figure around four hundred thousand dollars would be acceptable to all concerned and not far from its present value.

In thinking over this civic center idea we always link it with the consolidation of our school systems and the inauguration of the Junior High School plan of education. By this we mean what is classed as the 6-3-3 plan. Six years of grade schools—three years of Junior High and three years of Senior High School. This is being accepted by school authorities throughout the land as nearest to ideal.

By using the money acquired from the sale of the plant to the city Junior High Schools could be erected in the different sections of the city and district and the schools would gain instead of losing by the sale of the high school property.

The intermediate school recently built at Glendale and Park avenue could be changed into a Junior High and would make an ideal one.

ANOTHER Junior High could be erected on the site in the northwest section recently purchased by the city schools. A school as good or better than the Glendale intermediate could be built for approximately $175,000. Improvements and additions could be made to the Wilson avenue intermediate and it could be used as a Junior High School. Another Junior High School could be built to be placed in a locality suitable for the combined use of La Brea and Tujunga.

This would give us four Junior High Schools well located and all without spending any more money than that received for the old plant. Some minor objections are being offered by those who are juke warm on the proposition, but all of these can be met as they are really only details to be worked out.

The present congestion in our city schools can be taken care of by giving them the high school bungalows and allowing them the use of the athletic field during school hours.

The high school could also use the Practical Arts buildings for another year but it could be allowed these without interfering with the launching of the civic center proposition.

Let's all get together and sink our individual opinions for the sake of the community at large.

SO. CENTRAL OPPOSES CITY COUNCIL ACT

Property Owners Resent
Condemnation of Cerri-tos Avenue Property

VOTE FOR PAVING
One Hundred Respond to Call to the Meeting at Magnolia School

In response to the call of realty owners on South Central avenue, about one hundred met at the Magnolia avenue school last night to discuss the beautifying of Central avenue. The meeting was presided over by Mr. Bennett, chairman, and Mr. Marshall, secretary. The principal topic was the paving of Central avenue from Broadway south to San Fernando road. After a thorough discussion of the methods it was unanimously decided to pave the street from curb to curb with a six inch pavement first laying water and sewer mains with service connections where necessary.

The chair appointed a committee of five consisting of Messrs. Marshall, Hague, Mr. Knox, Selver to investigate the different kinds of pavement and report their findings to the next meeting.

Discussion was then entered into on the New Southern Pacific depot site and motion was made and seconded that it is the desire of the people here assembled to protest against the action of the city council in condemning property at the foot of Central avenue for the opening of an entrance to the new Southern Pacific depot which was unanimously carried.

The discussion of matters concerning the improvement of Central avenue was general and animated. Speeches were made by Charles Guthrie, president of the Central Avenue Improvement Association; John Hobbs, Mr. Knox, Harry Hague, City Engineer Dupuy, who explained the propositions contemplated from an engineering standpoint, and a number of others expressed themselves.

Several resolutions were adopted, one favoring the locating of the Southern Pacific station at the foot of Bolalia street.

White no specific action was taken, sentiment seemed to be unanimous in favor of ornamental street lights, the particular kind being left for decision to later meetings.

NARCOTICS AND CRIME TOLD TO EXCHANGE CLUB

Deputy District Attorney
Fricke of L. A. Makes Address

By W. L. TAYLOR

Deputy District Attorney Chas. G. Fricke of Los Angeles was the speaker at the noon luncheon of the Exchange club at the Golden Spanish cafe, 115 South Orange, yesterday. He discussed the narcotic problem as it affects crime, and gave a most interesting address.

"I am glad the present campaign against narcotics is gathering momentum over the country, for narcotics just now is contributing more to the commission of crime than any other influence I know of. The people of the United States use more narcotics than any other nation in the world, the per capita being 36 grains per person. And Southern California is furnishing more than its share of drug users. There are more than one million drug addicts in the United States, and the number is increasing at an alarming rate. The idea you can tell a drug addict when you see him is not true. Some of the best appearing people you meet use drugs. And the awful business is not confined to any one class. Peddlers are continually working around the public schools, give the boys the stuff for leadache, and encourage athletes to use it. The peddlers pay the boys $3 for every drug addict they make. The dope peddlers plies his trade in every quarter and no one is immune from his seductive power.

"The dope is sold at from 50 cents to $1 per grain, and the young man soon reaches the point where he must have at least fifteen grains a day. When he cannot get the money to buy his drugs he starts on the crime career, robbery being the first step, and later murder. Ninety per cent of the criminals use narcotics. And the purpose of the production and education of the people is about the only solution of the problem. Few people

WHITE BREAKFAST NOW MEMORIAL TO MRS. MARY BRALY

Gridley Chapter to Continue Annual Event in Honor of First Regent

The "White Breakfast," which the General Richard Gridley chapter will continue to celebrate annually as a memorial to its founder and first regent, Mrs. Mary Gridley Braly, was served Wednesday noon at the First Congregational church where the chapter will hold its meetings the coming year.

Mrs. Charles H. Houston, the newly elected regent, presided and she and her staff of officers were installed by Mrs. Lyman Stookey, state regent, who was the guest of honor and who gave a most interesting review of the national D. A. R. congress held in Washington, its plans and the plans of the state conference for D. A. R. work the coming year.

Miss Ida Myers, vice regent of the chapter, who has been serving as state chairman of thrift and conservation, invoked the divine blessing and paid a tribute to Mrs. Braly. A telegram from Mrs. Irma Kirk, thanking the chapter for its loyalty to her mother's memory, was read by Mrs. Houston.

The tables were arranged in a hollow square around a central table banked with flowers in the national colors above which were two crossed flags. Bordered the inner edge of the tables at which guests were seated was a band of greenery brightened by red, white and blue flowers—Shasta daisies, scarlet geraniums and blue cornflowers. These and sweet peas graced the head table at which were seated the officers.

Covers were laid for Mesdames Stookey, Houston, Preston, Frank H. Flower, Potter, Pierce, Mann, Jencks, Hayward, Lyman, Brown, Saylor, Stickney, Palmer, Rathbun, Leppelman, Butterfield, Purvier, Elwood, Wilson, Balch, Mitchell, Strong, Peart, Dunn, Crawford and Kimball. Misses Myers, Paime, Seelies, Heroy and Dunne, and guests of the chapter, Mrs. G. A. Gibbs, Mrs. Bartlett, Miss Sinks and Miss Gibbs.

Following the delicious luncheon, prepared and served by ladies of the Congregational auxiliary, under the direction of their president, Mrs. George Colson, an adjournment was taken to the pleasant church parlor where the D. A. R. ritual of the day was read, and the officers installed according to the form approved by the national D. A. R. congress by Mrs. Stookey is follows:

Regent, Mrs. C. H. Houston; vice regent, Miss Ida Myers; second vice regent, Mrs. C. S. Leppelman; recording secretary, Mrs. A. S. Crawford; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Mabel Franklin Ocker (not present); treasurer, Mrs. Agnes L. Lyman; registrar, Mrs. E. W. W. Hayward; historian, Mrs. T. W. Preston.

The reports of the day included a review of the work of the flag chairman, Mrs. Leppelman, which showed that many copies of the flag code had been distributed to organizations which have honored them by having them framed and hung upon their walls; also that the chapter had presented to the Tuesday afternoon club a beautiful silk flag which will grace its auditorium at all times.

Mrs. Rathbun, chairman of philanthropy, told of work for the majority of the chapter, which has always been the beneficiary of the chapter, which contributed $1000 to its endowment fund. The list of beneficiaries included the collection of 669 articles of clothing.

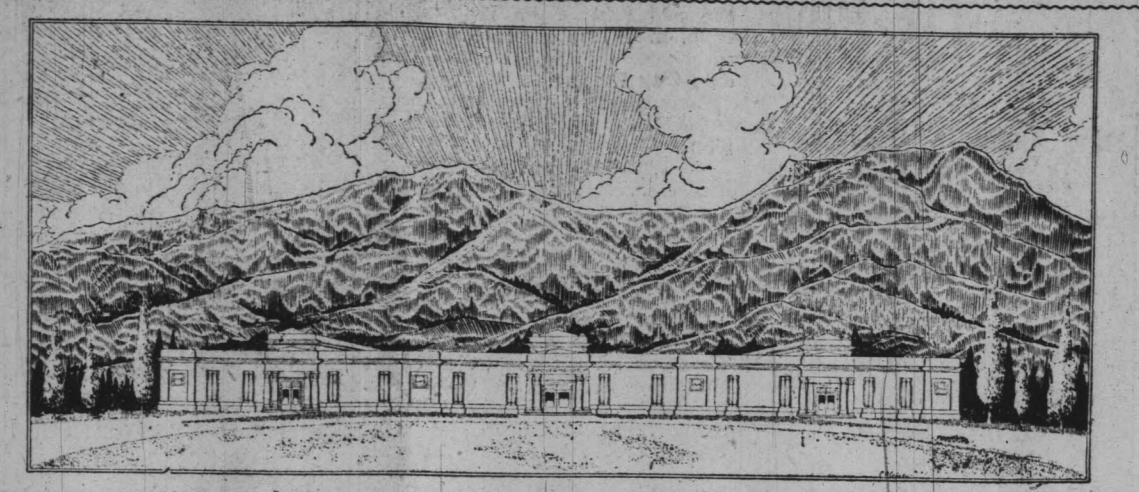

Miss Ida Myers, chairman of thrift and conservation, reported 624 magazines, 346 pictures, 21 books, 626 articles of clothing, 28 classes of jewelry and other contributions to the Alvin School center.

She paid a great tribute to the work of her associates, Mrs. Crawford, Mrs. Rathbun.

Her report as state chairman of thrift concerned the planting of trees on which all chapters were asked to concentrate the past year. So successful was she in interest in the various chapters, that it is probable, when all returns are in to the national organization, California will be found to be the banner state. Mrs. Stookey stated that Miss Myers was the only state chairman honored by special mention on the floor of the D. A. R. congress. Her report showed trees planted by the various chapters as follows: San Diego, 252; Hollywood, 7802; Garfield, 50; San Fernando, 6013; Palo Alto, 19; El Camino Real, 229; Pasadena, 6; Sierra, 110; Alhambra and San Gabriel, 95; Claremont, 397; Pomona, 54; Arrowhead, 40; San Antonio 3801; Golden West, 489; Santa Ysabel, 2230; General Richard Gridley, 67, and others totalling 632, which were reported without affidavit.

Two of the trees planted by the local chapter were upon the

PLAN AND VIEW IS SHOWN OF THE NEW $60,000 MAUSOLEUM AT THE GRAND VIEW MEMORIAL PARK

Here is the plan of the first unit of the Grand View Mausoleum to cost $60,000. Sunset services are to be held Sunday, June 10, when the ground will be broken and the historical crypt dedicated.

When the ground is broken at sunset Sunday for the first $60,000 unit of the Grand View mausoleum at Grand View cemetery, an impressive ceremony is to take place in the sealing and dedication of a crypt for historical records, which will not be opened again for half a century.

At this time the public will be invited to place any historical matter they wish, which should be put into an envelope and sealed. According to the dedication ceremony the crypt will be opened again at sunset on June 10, 1973, when additional records will be sealed with those of 1923.

Rev. Thos. E. Stevenson, master of ceremonies, has been assisted in arranging the services by Rev. Thomas F. Allen, Ernest A. Main, Rev. Leslie G. Parker and Rev. Thomas E. Stevenson taking part, the Usona male quartet will sing. Julius Phillips, Charles Vincent Clay, Charles L. Munro and Charles Russell compose the quartet, with Stillwell Moore, accompanist.

The Grand View mausoleum is to be one of the most beautiful and yet the most practical, for through its simplicity, it is offered on such terms that the poorest can avail themselves of the peaceful and quiet resting place for their loved ones. The structure is to be durable, but so designed, as to be erected at a minimum cost.

TENNIS TITLE WON BY HIGH AT ALHAMBRA

Glendale High Closes An Unbeaten Season
This Year

By defeating Alhambra high school by a score of 13 to 4 at the tennis matches played Tuesday at Alhambra, Glendale high won the championship, with the distinction of not losing a tournament during the entire season. Coach Hayhurst states that the matches were all very close, some of the scores going as high as 12 to 10, and that the game was much closer than the final score of 13 to 4 would indicate.

Impressive Services at the Methodist Church Amid
Floral Tributes

REV. SNUDDEN TALKS
Huge Cortege Follows Beloved Woman to Last Resting Place

No greater evidence of the large place which Pearl Tower, wife of A. W. Tower, had created for herself in the hearts of Glendale, could be afforded than the presence of sincere mourners who filled the big auditorium of the First Methodist Church this morning at 11 o'clock.

The pulpit was piled high with wonderfully beautiful floral tributes not only from organizations of which she had been a valued member, but from a host of personal friends who share in some measure the grief of those most near and dear to her.

A very beautiful obituary written by Mrs. Tower's father, Rev. Collins, which recited the activities of her life from childhood when she united with the Methodist church, to the day of her death, including her work for the organizations with which she was connected, was read by the pastor, Rev. Harry Ramsey. It closed with these words: "Her most enduring work was in her home, her real citadel. In the language of inspiration: 'Her child shall rise up and call her blessed; her husband also, he praiseth her.' When the end came no blot was to be found on her home. It came suddenly, and when she fell it was at her post of duty in the home where she had last wrought."

There was music by a quartet composed of Dr. P. O. Lucas, Glen Dolberg, Dorothy Peart and Miss Isabel Isgrig and Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar" was sung in solo by Miss Isgrig.

The address was by Rev. B. Dudley Snudden, a former pastor of the First Methodist church, who referred to the brief obituary as the most eloquent tribute to Mrs. Tower that could be paid.

The text was taken from John 17-24. "Father, I desire that also Thou hast given me be with me

Majors Jackson and Baird are now busy selecting their captains, nine of which will be chosen for each team. Teach Children Lessons of Thrift CHILDREN should be taught early the value of thrift. They should learn to save now against the urgent need of money which will one day come to each of them.

Thrift has further benefits. Lessons learned in youth mold the man to be. Habits of saving money encourage many other desirable qualities—will power, stability, fixity of purpose, self-reliance.

The Pacific-Southwest Bank is interested in children and wants to help them learn to save. With them some day this bank will be co-operating to carry on the business of the Pacific-Southwest.

800 HOURS EACH YEAR SPENT IN DISHWASHING

"Washing dishes is not regarded by the average woman as one of the delightful features of housework. In addition to being not over attractive, it takes a considerable amount of time," says Mrs. V. V. Naudain of the Glendale Electric company.

"One of the publications devoted to the interests of women estimates that it takes 800 hours' work per year. By careful test and observation it has been ascertained that the average time required for washing the dishes is 40 minutes. This, it is pointed out, is equivalent to the work of one person working steadily eight hours a day for three months a year.

"Employ a servant to do all this, and you will have to pay at least $12 a week and 'keep,' which includes food, room, washing and incidentals, and amounts to $8 per week at the lowest. Her time will cost at least 25 cents per hour. At this rate the 800 hours of dishwashing by a servant will cost $200 during the year. A pretty price for a disastrous job! And the housewife's time is worth so much more that if she does it herself, we must consider the dishwashing by hand an even more expensive item.

"The electrical dishwasher does away with the annoyance, saves the time otherwise given to this task, and washes the dishes at a very small operating expense. Moreover, in a sanitary sense it is a very decided improvement over the dishpan method."

PURELY PERSONAL

Mrs. H. T. Abair of Chicago is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Brown of 529 West Vine street, and sister, Mrs. W. E. Scott of 1114 South Boynton street. She will remain here about two months.

PROXY SENIORS TO STAGE MEDEA OF EURIPIDES

The announcement that the senior class of Occidental college will present the Medea of Euripides in the "Upper Quad" on the evening of June 14 has awakened widespread interest among educational circles of Southern California. This might be expected from the fact that the play is dramatized by Euripides and from the unusual manner in which it is to be reproduced.

The translation by Dr. W. D. Ward, Professor of Greek in Occidental, has turned the dialogue into dramatic prose. The plot, unhampered by restrictions of rhyme and metre, thus stands out with greater distinctness, enabling the audience more easily to follow its progress through the various stages and to appreciate its gathering intensity. The choral odes, on the other hand, retain in the English their original metres and have been set to special music in which the quantities and rhythm of Euripides are carefully preserved. It is doubtful if this could be said of any previous presentation of a Greek play given anywhere in the world. Outside the choral odes about sixty lines have been rendered into English verse in march time imitating the anapaestic dimeters of the original. These will be delivered in recitative with flute accompaniment.

The chorus of fifteen women will be garbed to represent Corinthian matrons. Gliding to and fro in symmetrical formations, stepping to the stately measures of ancient tragedy, at the same time hymning in unison the choral odes, they will add an attraction distinctly new among the classical productions of Southern California. The music of these odes, written for the occasion by Mrs. Ethel Ward Johnson, is frankly modern. It is a beautiful adaptation, however, to the sentiment of the words and to the situations which they portray. The flute, so characteristic of ancient days, will be heard blending with the voices, yet always leading, softly accompanied by the piano, with violin and cello.

Actors and chorus alike will deliver their parts mainly in the circular orchestra which takes the place of a raised stage. The Greek theatre had no stage, as we understand the word. Instead, the entire performance was enacted in the lowest part of the auditorium, a complete circle from which the seats arose in concentric tiers. For the present performance this circle will be just in front of the broad flight of steps which leads from the upper quad to the columned entrance of Johnson Hall. Johnson Hall itself will represent Medea's mansion, seats for the audience being built around the remaining part of the circle as already described. A more beautiful setting it would be hard to find.

The costumes have been professionally designed in accordance with Greek pictorial art of the best period.

Most important for the general public to know, Gilmor Brown, of the Community Players, Pasadena, is superintending the entire production. What that means few Californians need be told.

YOUNG WOMEN TO DINE

Are Asked to Be Guests of the Recreation Committee

THURSDAY EVENING

Community Service Body Seeks to Find Their Play Desires

The girls and young women of Glendale are to be invited to a special supper at the Tuesday Afternoon club on Thursday evening, June 14, according to plans made by the recreation committee of Community Service, which met at the chamber of commerce yesterday afternoon.

This is the first step toward working out a program of recreation for the young people of the city. At the dinner, questionnaires will be given out and the young women will be given an opportunity to indicate the line of recreation or sport they are most interested in. An effort will be made to provide the facilities and opportunities for those special features that are indicated.

While this first event is for young women only, the program that will be developed will be for both young men and women.

The committee which has been appointed by V. M. Hollister, president of Community Service, to work out this feature of the program is as follows: Mrs. John R. Case, Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson, Mrs. C. C. Cooper, Miss Myrtle Helmer, Mayor Spencer Robinson, Rev. C. M. Calderwood and J. C. Smith.

The committee will meet for final arrangements Wednesday morning, June 13.

WILSON AVENUE ATHLETES WIN CHAMPIONSHIP

Senior and Junior Teams Take Three Out of Five Games

The senior and junior baseball teams of Wilson avenue Intermediate have again captured the indoor championships in a series of games in which the banners were to go to teams winning three out of five games. Wednesday the senior and junior teams of the school played the senior and junior teams of Glendale Avenue Intermediate, the Wilson seniors winning with a score of 30 to 5, and the juniors of the same school winning with a score of 7 to 3. Neither team has been defeated and this was the third game for each. The cup of victory will therefore remain with them during the indoor baseball season.

A series of games between the school teams of Wilson and Glendale avenue intermediates is being arranged, the first of which is to be played tonight at Glendale avenue.

where I am that they may behold my glory," said he.

"We take a long time learning the great lessons of God. The world is full of spiritual illiteracy. We misinterpret religion and the great messages that come to us from such a scene as this."

He pronounced the life of Mrs. Tower an ideal one. "She came to the saint's crowning by walking the saint's highway," he declared. "A life lived in this world of righteousness is the most radiant energy we know anything about, and I think we have an illustration here. The fact that so many are gathered here testifies that her life radiated the things that belong to a beautiful personality. This thing we call 'personality' is an eternal thing."

In closing the service Dr. Snadden prayed that comfort might come to the sorrowing husband, daughter, father and brother, and to the many mourning friends, and then asked the audience to join in softly singing the favorite hymn of Mrs. Tower: "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name."

Friends were then given opportunity for a last look at the face they had loved. Many organizations were represented by large delegations as well as floral tributes—the Glen Elyrie Chapter of the Eastern Star, Chapter L of the P. E. O., The Tuesday Afternoon Club, the College Women's Club, The Ladies' Aid, J. O. C., and other societies of the church and Sunday school with which she had been identified.

Serving as pall bearers were W. E. Evans, Daniel Campbell, George U. Moyse, Claude Case, Frank Welcome, and W. Dunn of Los Angeles. Interment was at Forest Lawn where a service was conducted by Glen Elyrie Chapter, of which Mrs. Tower was a past matron.

BETTER BUSINESS CONDITIONS IN GLENDALE

E. R. Ripley Relates Activities of Newcomers to the City

That present business conditions are better than ever before in the history of Glendale is the assertion made by E. R. Ripley of the E. R. Ripley Co., realtors, 200 West Broadway.

"People today invariably ask the real estate dealers the important questions concerning values in real estate prevailing in Glendale, and it can be set down as a fact that through the dealers, the successful buyers make a safe barometer as to the future of Glendale," said Mr. Ripley.

"For example," he continued, "a wealthy business man, recently of Cleveland, who has made two very substantial investments in Glendale business properties for the North Brand, and one on South Glendale avenue, said, in regard to the Glendale of today and the Glendale of tomorrow: 'On my first or second day I made an investment representing five figures, and this ought to speak for my belief in the future of Glendale, a future for a city of unlimited size, and I wanted to get in on the ground floor. My family will soon be here, and we will have a home located in your northwest section which is the future high-class residence section of Glendale, indicated by the class of homes already built and under construction, and the proper restrictions which assure it. Your city has just begun to grow.'"

"Another eastern man who has selected Glendale for the future home for his family, settled here, after fifteen years of travel, and says that if people in general ask him why he has chosen Glendale he could truthfully say: 'I am able to choose any other city, but Glendale suits us, from every standpoint of interest to our family, viz., climate, environment and business possibilities. From what you tell me about your lots for our home, allow me to compliment you on your selection of your little tract because you certainly have your lots located in one of the most ideal homelands I have ever seen.'"

In addition to this proof of the bright business outlook here, Mr. Ripley announces that he has secured a binding sale and deposit from one of the most successful and high-class subdivisions in Southern California for the 600 acres in Glendale joining Cumberland avenue, and that soon Glendale will have her own beautiful mountain view homes out rivaling the north hills of Hollywood and Los Angeles.

ple fully realize the awfulness of narcotics or they would never touch them. The majority of criminals today are two years younger than they were twenty years ago. Most of the criminals are now from 18 to 20 years of age, and lack the proper education and ability to earn enough money to keep up with the pace of jazz and silk. Los Angeles county furnishes one-third of the prisoners entering the California state penitentiary. We must have another penitentiary soon, and I believe it should be built in Southern California."

Mr. Fricke paid a glowing tribute to Judge Sidney N. Reeves, now a resident of Glendale, who is handling hundreds of criminal cases. Judge Reeves has a way of his own, and his success has been phenomenal.

"Out of five thousand cases of theft of autos only three to my knowledge have occurred where the red wheel lock was used," said Mr. Fricke.

The club had several guests, among them being Senator Ben C. Sheldon, formerly of Oregon; Senator Kent E. Keller of Ava, Ill., and J. C. McReynolds of Los Angeles. Senator Keller made a short talk and said he was in Glendale when there was nothing but sage brush here, and that he could hardly realize the wonderful transformation through which this section has passed. Senator Sheldon said he was sorry that he did not come to Glendale twenty years ago instead of going to Oregon.

REALTORS PLAN REAL JINX DAY FOR JUNE 16

Artists to Brew Day of Joy and Surprises Every Minute

By BERT MARPLE

Jinx-es of all styles and sizes, of all colors, makes and descriptions, of all breeds, nationalities, and "persuasions," will be present at the first annual jinx day of the Glendale Realty board to be held in the "near Glendale-Verdugo park," now the Haddock-Nibley park, on June 16, according to an announcement made by W. L. Twining, chairman of the jinx day committee at the meeting of that organization Wednesday noon.

"Take it from me, folks," said W. L., as he raved, over the big time that is in store for the members of the board and their families, "We're going to have one great big time. There will be surprises galore. All of the artists of the organization will be on hand to do their stunts.

"The ball game, which will be put on under the direction of Elia-Jane, promises to be a big league event with all the spice and pep known to amateur-professionals, and then some.

"Peter Hanson has charge of the campfire, and it is going to be a regular thoroughbred affair. Everything Pete has ever done has been done right, according to his own confession, and we can look for big things to happen around the big blaze.

"The eats will be handled by W. N. McMillan, who knows real eats when he sees them. You can bet they'll be something worth while and you'll get your fill.

"The grounds will be taken care of by the committee composed of Mayor Robinson and W. A. Horn. The mayor will personally sweep out the dancing pavilion and have everything ready for the "shindig" and he's not supposed to get any of the city employees to help him, either. This is to be a Glendale Realty board proposition, not a community picnic.

A committee consisting of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Wilson will have charge of the dancing. L. H. is experienced along this line and he promises to carry things off in grand style. The music committee consists of Dr. Jessie A. Russell, President Thom and myself. We are all musicians of the highest character and we have selected the best music to be found in the state. The entertainment in the evening will be for young and old.

"So, folks, there's no use any of you kicking on how things have been and are being handled. We're going to put this thing over big. No excuses will be accepted from those who are asked to work. The success of this event depends on every man doing his part. This will be a "go-getter" event. It's bound to be."

"Yes," said President Cameron Thom, "the president has placed his stamp of approval on the event, which alone assures the greatest kind of success."

The festivities of the jinx day will begin at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and will continue until midnight. Every realtor in Glendale is expected to close his shop at 3 o'clock and to join in the festivities.

At the meeting held yesterday the board went on record as supporting in every way the campaign for new members that will be put on next week by the Glendale chamber of commerce. In the discussion that was held on this question it was stated by various members that the board is back of the chamber in this upbuilding work and will do all it can to assist.

An offer of an out-of-town band to give concerts in Glendale during the coming summer was received, but, as was stated, Glendale has an excellent band in the Elks' organization. The matter was laid on the table.

The matter of securing an adequate directory for Glendale was taken up, and the directory committee of which L. H. Wilson is chairman, was requested to look into this matter at once.

A communication was received from R. E. Tucker of the Community Service asking that the Realty board co-operate with that organization in the formation of a social calendar in Glendale, and the secretary was instructed to inform Mr. Tucker of the events that are to be held by the board during the coming few weeks.

The matter of securing something descriptive of Glendale to be sent to the National Realtors' convention in Cleveland in July for the use of Dr. Jessie A. Russell, who will represent the Glendale Realty board at that event, was brought up by Peter Hanson, chairman of the publicity committee. He stated that he thought some strenuous effort should be made to provide Dr. Russell with something that she might distribute at the convention.

Charles B. Guthrie suggested that as the Glendale peacock had made such a hit and had been distributed throughout the country a cut out design of a beautiful peacock's tail might be so arranged with figures concerning Glendale as to prove of considerable attraction. This could be made so as to attach to the lapel of the coat or to be used as a fan.

The publicity committee was authorized to take this matter up at once with power to act in the matter.

The matter of relocating the "Glendale" sign that is situated at the corner of Brand boulevard and San Fernando road, was brought up by J. W. Pearson. He stated that on several occasions it has come to his knowledge that motorists have mistaken the San Fernando business section for the

CAR REPAIRS AT YOUR OWN GARAGE

The advantage of having automobile repairs done at home is offered to the Glendale motorist through Fred O. Gaines of 6242 Maple street, who presents a much needed service in this line.

Mr. Gaines states that he finds several advantages in the house to house service, the chief one being that it saves the overhead expenses and enables him to do the work at a lower figure. "This service also prevents little troubles from becoming big troubles, because they are given the proper attention and that at the proper time. It is different from the service given on cars in large machine shops, for the reason that I do not start on one car and then abandon it for another job, as it is necessary to do in the larger places."

Mr. Gaines carries an advertisement with the Glendale Daily Press in the classified business directory.

ALL MONTROSE ATTENDS DANCE OF C. OF C.

La Crescenta Folks Unite
With Canyon Folks
at Party

The Montrose Chamber of Commerce gave a most enjoyable dance last night in the new Rhinehardt building, which has just been completed. The number of automobiles parked along Honolulu avenue, Montrose, gave evidence that Montrose and La Crescenta folks were out in full force. Mark S. Collins acted as auctioneer in the sale of fancy cakes, which swelled the proceeds of the general receipts of the evening.

A list of those present would resemble a "Who's Who" of the Montrose section. Kelly's Shrine Orchestra of Glendale furnished the music, which was very much appreciated by the dancers. Cornmeal and wax spread on the cement floor soon put it in the ballroom class. During the evening refreshments of home made cakes and punch were served. Mrs. Ella Ellis, assisted by the Montrose ladies, was in charge of the dance and are gratified at the substantial net profit cleared, which will be used by the Montrose Chamber of Commerce as an advertising fund. It is noteworthy to state that this was the first public dance ever given in Montrose as no adequate building has heretofore been available for social gatherings. It is expected that the new school house will be completed this fall, furnishing a much needed social center for that community.

Coye, G. A. Campbell, J. H. Huff, S. A. Warren, R. A. Sullivan, F. C. Butler and F. A. Collins, have called a meeting at the office of Gilhuly & Russell, 212 South Brand, at 8 o'clock this evening to complete arrangements for the institution of the Pyramid Friday evening, June 8, in the I. O. O. F. hall, 201-A West Broadway. The arrangements will include a parade, which will leave Broadway and Brand about 8 p. m. tomorrow evening, in which about 300 Sciots will take part, including a 50-piece band of the Los Angeles Pyramid No. 30, which will be on hand to live up the affair. After the parade the party will go to hall, where the Pyramid will be instituted and officers installed. The supreme officers of San Francisco will be present. There will be a program by professional talent. All Master Masons of the San Fernando valley are invited to attend.

MUTUAL BENEFIT CIRCLE PICNIC DISCUSSION

Plans for the annual picnic of the Mutual Benefit Reading circle were discussed at the meeting of that organization at the public library yesterday. Mrs. H. V. Henry was made chairman of a committee to choose a place for the picnic, which will be held on June 20. Mrs. R. C. Horner reported for the committee arranging for the menu. It was decided to have the women of the Wilson Avenue Intermediate cafeteria prepare all the lunch.

The meeting was in charge of Mrs. H. V. Henry, vice chairman of the circle. Mrs. B. L. Cline announced a concert by the school children at the Broadway school, Thursday and Friday. Mrs. E. B. Moore announced the P. T. A. federation picnic on Wednesday, June 3 at Brookside park. The regular meeting of the circle next week will be held on Thursday, June 14, on account of the federation picnic. Mrs. McLain gave the treasurer's report, showing 104 paidup members.

The review yesterday was given by Mrs. Henry on "Imagination and a Few Mothers" (F. Scott Fitzgerald). Roll call was answered by quotations. Mrs. Henry also continued reading from the book, "Play and Education" (Lee), taking up the chapters on "Rhythm."

COLLEGE WOMEN'S CLUB POSTPONES ITS LUNCHEON

Mrs. A. L. Ferguson, president of the College Women's club, states that not all the members have apparently learned of the postponement of the luncheon from the 9th to the 16th, because of the death of Mrs. Tower. Reservations are coming in for the 9th. These will be good for the luncheon to be held the 16th at the Tuesday Afternoon club.

EDISON COMPANY SHOW IS ENJOYED

The Edison company road show entertainment given last night at the Pacific avenue school for the benefit of the school cafeteria was most thoroughly enjoyed by those present. The program was in the nature of an electrical demonstration. Also there were motion pictures showing the progress of electricity throughout the United States and particularly in California. This program was interspersed with other numbers of entertainment, including a Valentine fantasy by Truman and Muriel Curtis and Eda Paul, piano solo by Miss Lucie Beach, a balloon dance by Helen Rosenberg and vocal solos by Donna Wilson, accompanied at the piano by her sister, Ethel Wilson.

ENTERTAINS IN HONOR OF DAUGHTER'S BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Clark Johnson of 638 North Jackson street entertained a group of children at a party given recently in celebration of the tenth birthday anniversary of her daughter, Fern Johnson. The guests included Charlotte Dean, Sally Gray, Irene Nickell, Wanda Lee Nickell, Laura Louise Randall, Mildred Fife, Lottie Hudson, Jean Lyons, Mary Emma Miner, Irene Curl, Gretchen Kuehny, Ardis Waldeich, Pauline Hatch, Frances McCormick, Clarita McCormick, Lucy McCormick, Dorothy Wilson, Edith Wintersgill, Caroline Everington, Geraldine Kolcher, Mary Stecher, Louise Stecher, Helen Moir and Carol Mae Evans.

Decorations were carried out in a color scheme of pink and green. The bonbon baskets were of pale green, filled with pink candies. As favors each guest was given a tiny bottle of French perfume. A large white birthday cake, decorated with pink roses and candles, was a feature of the refreshments.

K. C. PLANS BIG PICNIC JUNE 24 AT VERDUGO PARK

Moving Picture Stars to Attend the Big Event

At the regular meeting of the Glendale Council of Knights of Columbus held last night with Grand Knight Harry Girard in charge, committees were appointed for the K. C. picnic to be held June 24 at Glendale-Verdugo Park. Dr. Berry of Eagle Rock is chairman of the picnic committee. From the comprehensive campaign which is laid out the picnic promises to be one of the big affairs of the year. There will be famous moving picture stars and other notables present and contests of various kinds will be put on.

Among other things taken up at last night's meeting was that of holding a smoker for members only on next Wednesday night. There will be boxing bouts and entertainment of various kinds. This will be the first smoker that the Knights have given in Glendale, and it will be attended by knights from Los Angeles, Hollywood, Pasadena, Van Nuys, San Fernando and surrounding councils.

A resolution was passed that a telegram be sent to the Hon. and Mrs. Joseph Scott of Pasadena congratulating them on their silver wedding anniversary yesterday. Mr. Scott is considered as one of the greatest K. C.'s in the country and highly esteemed by members of the Glendale Council.

A resolution was also adopted endorsing the Chamber of Commerce campaign for new members and the Knights of Columbus members were urged to assist by helping in the drive and also in the work the chamber is doing for the city.

A large number of the Glendale Knights are planning to join in the Los Angeles Knights of Columbus annual excursion to Catalina Island on Sunday.

SPIRIT OF CLASS REUNION AT HIGH

The class reunion spirit mounts high as commencement week approaches and infects the graduates. The class of June, 1922, which was an especially good class and very devoted to its alma mater, is having a reunion Friday afternoon at Brookside park from 2 to 7, and every member, it is hoped will be there. Games and swimming will constitute the program and a barbecue supper the refreshments.

LOCAL SPANISH WAR VETERANS HOLD MEETING

About thirty men present at the meeting of the local post of Spanish-American War Veterans held Wednesday evening and passed a pleasant evening of reminiscences of the war to which all contributed. Reports from Frank E. Peters and Alexander Schmitt, who are collecting funds for the post flag at $1 per member, were highly satisfactory.

Plans were discussed for a picnic to be held July 4 in the former Glendale-Verdugo park to which all posts in Los Angeles county will be invited. A general committee was appointed and those who are promoting the matter stated that Tom Galbraith, state commander, would be present and make an address and that a good many department officers had promised to come. The women's auxiliary will of course, participate.

Maxon, and consisted of the acting out of several fairy stories, songs and recitations.

Mrs. Ellis, retiring president, was presented with a beautiful basket of flowers in appreciation of the splendid work she has done during the past year. At the close of a short business session the hospitality chairman served refreshments of punch and water. Mrs. Clark Johnson is the new president of the association.

For many years she worked at Mahova, where she founded a girls' orphanage and school. Since retiring about four years ago she has resided at Long Beach.

WHITE BREAKFAST IS NOW MEMORIAL

grounds of the Tuesday Afternoon club, and Miss Myers announced the intention of the chapter to continue the work the present year and plant trees upon the campus of the new high school.

Mrs. Stookey reviewed the history of the D. A. R. organized in 1890 by 18 women, and which has now 1923 chapters with a membership of 135,000. Its aims are along the line of education, history and patriotism, which were explained. The most interesting marker of the state organization during the year, she said, was the one placed at Sacramento to mark the end of the "pony express trail."

She spoke of the amount of research work the national society is called upon to do which has examined in the past three years 41,000 papers.

She described the beauty of the home of the order in Washington, where the conference for the limitation of armaments was held, and stated that only 40 real "daughters" are now living, and a good many of them are in poverty. To aid them the national organization is devoting the interest on its liberty loan holdings of $100,000 to a fund which is distributed as pensions, giving each about $20 per month.

She spoke in a pleasant, informal manner and her talk was followed with the greatest interest.

Union Label Folks Elect New Officers

HOME—

The Cradle of Character

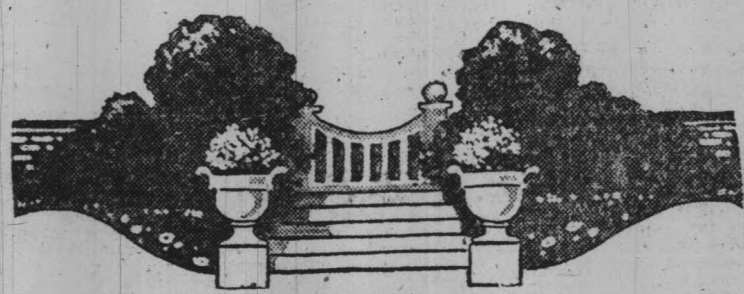

By W. SPENCER HUFFMAN

Molded to the character of its builder, the Home, in its turn molds the character of those whom it harbors, until they, in their turn, dominate. Then, the Home becomes as a mirror, reflecting the tastes, the whims, the aspirations, the success and the character of the souls it once cradled!

Reflecting the spirit in which it is built and appointed, the Home forms an environment which, next to human association, wields the mightiest influence upon character. Through the environment of Home the traits of neatness, carefulness, thoughtfulness, faithfulness, ruggedness, truthfulness—in short, the positive traits of sterling character or their opposites are instilled.

The first use of Home in the molding of sterling character is found in the actual possession. Home ownership makes for responsibility and reliability and is the prime requisite for full citizenship. The true spirit of Home does not demand any degree of grandeur, but rather the desire for a haven to protect the sanctity of one's family and the ambition to possess a part of the community of which one is a member.

The second use of Home in molding character is the cultivation of refinement and the attainment of culture made possible by the environment of refinement and culture in good furniture, art and music. Surround mankind with appointments reflecting culture—place him in daily contact with pictures depicting the beautiful in life—pour into his soul the inspiring music of the masters, and you have advanced humanity another step toward the ideal of the Creator!

Make Wedding Morning an

Electrical Morning

Those who have the best interests of the bride at heart will do as much as possible to lighten her housework. They will give useful—not ornamental—gifts.

In order that she may have an extra few minutes of sleep in the mornings, give an electric stove, percolator and toaster.

Housework is made much easier by the use of a vacuum cleaner. Incidentally, her home will be much cleaner.

Electricity is lightening the work of a number of brides.

Will you let it lighten the work of the especial bride that you are interested in?

U. S. FACES DEFEAT AT THE NEXT OLYMPIC

Curing your Golf Troubles
By Jim Barnes

By HENRY L. FARRELL.
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, June 7. — Three years in succession, the University of California has sent a small band of athletes eastward from the Pacific coast to win the intercollegiate track and field championship.

That, in itself, is not an extraordinary feat, because two years before the Californians came east to start their run of three straight victories. Cornell had completed a high run of five championships in a row.

In winning the last three championships, California, however, should have given those who look forward to another easy victory for the American team in the Paris Olympics next year something to ponder over.

Three years in a row, the California team has shown that brawn in the field is better than speed on the track.

America, in the last Olympics, came out first principally because of her speed on the track and because a few veteran field performers were better than some of the Europeans who were just beginning to learn.

The California team this year won only three points in the track events and it follows without stretching a point that the Finns or the Swedes, might do no better on the track and yet make superiority in the field bring about the same successful results at Paris that California was able to secure.

Considering that the Finns are almost sure to repeat what they did in Antwerp in the javelin throw, the shot-put, the pentathlon and decathlon and the distance events and that the Swedes are likely to do better in the sprints, the hurdles and the jumps, it follows that the United States cannot win the championship again on a few good sprinters, a hurdler and a pole vaulter.

In addition, the California team has demonstrated three times in a row that might and power do not rest in numbers.

There were more coaches and officials with the 1922 American Olympic team than there were athletes on the Finland team and the Finns won as many first places as the Americans did.

Up to the present time it seems that the United States might be depending upon a few sprinters, a couple of pole vaulters, several hammer throwers, a shot-putter or two and some jumpers to win the next Olympic games.

And much more is needed.

PERIOD OF SEVERE TIMBER SHORTAGE IS INEVITABLE

A period of severe timber shortage in the United States is inevitable, according to the forest service, in an article in the 1922 yearbook of the United States department of agriculture, entitled "Timber: Mine or Crop?"

The original forest lands of the country, according to the bulletin, totaled 822,000,000 acres and the acreage of timber on that original forest is estimated at 5,200 billion board feet, probably having been far more. Today, the forest land area is but 470,000,000 acres and the timber stand is reckoned at 1,600 billion feet of virgin timber and 600 billion feet additional of culled and second growth stands.

The rate of timber consumption in the United States, including loss by fire and other destructive agencies, is nearly four times as great as the rate of timber growth. It is also stated, the country's requirements amounting to about 23 billion cubic feet each year, while but approximately 6 billion cubic feet is being grown.

"Production cannot be brought about in a short time," continues the article. "To make the practice of intensive forestry universal or even the rule throughout the United States will be possible only through gradual progress. It will require the development of scientific knowledge and technical methods of timber growing comparable with what has slowly and at large cost been obtained for agricultural crops."

"It will require effective protection against fires. It will require methods of cutting the mature timber that assure prompt and complete reforestation. It will require the selection and concentration of growth on the best species in each region, which will require cultural operations, such as thinning, which in European countries yield, and in this country may be expected to yield, a revenue from forest land before the main crop reaches maturity. It will require a cut so regulated that only the mature timber will be taken, and no more than the total growth of the whole forest."

"With the utmost that can be done many years must pass before we can make our forests produce through growth as much timber as is now yearly taken from them, and a period of shortage is inescapable."

I am constantly being told that I use too fast a backswing. But I have taken to watching the backswings of every good golfer that I see play, and it appears to me that they all swing quite as fast as I do. Does a fast backswing tend to make a player sway? What is the most likely trouble from swinging back too fast? I play around 85 when I am about the top of my game.

M. D. P.

It is quite possible that a fast backswing might cause a player to form a tendency to sway. But the danger is more in causing jerky a stroke and bad timing than in swaying. To swing properly a player must make the movements smoothly and must keep his balance. If he is rushing the backswing, he is more than likely to get off balance at the top, and any one of a long list of troubles may result.

Besides that, he is pretty sure to be in too big a hurry to hit the ball. This means that he will start "hitting" the ball—that is, applying his hitting power—almost as soon as he starts the club down. This, in its turn, is sure to mean bad timing, and if nothing else goes wrong, he is bound to be robbed of distance that he ought to get.

If you are inclined to swing back fast, just try a little practice at slowing down and see if you don't get better results.

ST. LOUIS TO BE AIR HUB

ST. LOUIS, June 7. (United Press).—Combining its strategic position at the geographical center of the United States with its big opportunity in holding the 1923 International Air Meet, St. Louis is planning to demand leadership of the American aviation industry.

More than 300 prominent business men and civic leaders gathered at a meeting of the St. Louis Air Board to plan for the Pulitzer Trophy Races and the International Meet here in October, accepted the challenge of aerial leaders to "make your city the air center of the United States."

A fund of $200,000 to provide a monster field to accommodate the planes which will gather here in October was started at the meeting. It has already been over-subscribed.

Rear Admiral R. A. Moffett, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, United States Navy, told those who attended the meeting St. Louis was "admirably" situated to "accept or even demand" aerial leadership.

"You in St. Louis are admirably located to become the focus of air highways of the United States," Moffett said.

"In addition to the fact you are situated practically in the center of the country, you have another resource, which may have been overlooked. That is the Mississippi river. Because of the adaptability of water planes to landing, flights along river courses will undoubtedly be the most practical. You are here at the center of the Mississippi river system, the Missouri and Ohio rivers, its chief tributaries, entering near your city. You are at the hub of the wheel."

While invitations are going out to thousands of the world's leading aviators to take part in the great air regatta, October 1, 2 and 3, and while construction of the new aviation field has been started, business and commercial leaders of the city are investigating the possibilities of making this city a permanent air center, both in the building of planes and in commercial flights.

The radical group desires to close the school and to join in the pending litigation brought by 15 other alien schools to test the constitutionality of the Clark act, adopted by the last legislature, to regulate alien language schools.

The conservative element desires to keep the school open, to refrain from joining the litigation and to obey the terms of the Clark act.

The disturbances arose when the radical and conservative groups met at the school and resulted in the victory for the radicals.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF BURBANK

CITY FATHERS CONSIDER ZONING ORDINANCE FOR FUTURE GOOD OF TOWN

Trustees Continue Promoting Street Improvement Work, Thus Making a Record for City of Its Size

The city trustees continued in the work of promoting street improvements at the regular business meeting this week, even though about three hours of the time was devoted to discussion of whether or not Burbank will have a cemetery.

With the awarding of a contract for six-inch and four-inch water mains on Pass avenue to Claude Fisher, the city of Burbank established a record for a town of its size for the volume of street improvement work. Six miles of water lines are being laid on Olive, Magnolia and Clark avenue (soon to be awarded) next. Fifteen miles of concrete, asphaltic concrete, and oil macadam are being put in the town. City Clerk Webster declares this a remarkable amount of work for so small a town.

Mr. Houle and City Marshal Long appeared before the board in regard to the detour on San Fernando boulevard. The matter was referred to Street Superintendent Scott, who will arrange for a more convenient detour.

Mr. Edwards of Edwards & Wilder, asked permission to install a gas station at Turkey Crossing. He was given a permit subject to a 30-day removal notice. As was also R. C. McMillan, who asked for a station on Sixth street, between Olive and Magnolia avenue.

Charles Kline and Mr. Lewis appeared before the council asking for a zoning ordinance. The matter was taken under advisement for future action. Mr. Kline and W. A. Blanchard were appointed by the city council to fill the vacancies on the city planning commission.

Homer Davis was granted his annual vacation, which will begin July 1. Improvement resolution for Grismer avenue was adopted. An ordinance prohibiting heavy traffic on Magnolia avenue between Sunset Canyon boulevard and San Fernando boulevard was read for the first time and passed to the second reading.

W. F. Richardson was employed by the council as the third motorcycle officer, at a salary of $140 a month.

KIWANIS HOSTS
TO SAN FERNANDO
VALLEY CLUBS

Kiwanis club members are planning for a luncheon at the Goodfellow's club next Wednesday noon for the entire number of Kiwanians in the San Fernando valley. Plans were completed at the regular business meeting this week.

Kiwanians will send five boys to the Boy Scout camp at Lake Arrowhead this summer. This makes a total of 11 lucky boys, for the Rotary club voted last week to send six boys to the Scout camp. Ralph Church, delegate to the convention at Atlanta, sent an interesting account of the convention, which was read at the meeting.

HANDSOME DINNER DRESS
Extremely handsome is a dinner dress of printed chiffon laid in tiny pleats and trimmed with filmy black lace. There is a narrow girdle of vari-colored beads.

DR. VAN METER TO ATTEND SESSION OF INSPECTORS

Dr. Van Meter has been appointed by the city trustees to attend the county meeting of Los Angeles, which will be held in Glendale this week to consider the establishing of a milk inspection laboratory.

The forming of a milk inspection bureau will insure regular inspection and grading of milk in the dairies of Burbank, Glendale, Lankershim and Van Nuys. All butter, milk, cream and milk used in all public restaurants will be inspected. Two dairy inspections of every dairy in the valley will be made twice a month.

DR. AND MRS. THOMPSON TO LEAVE FOR EAST
Dr. and Mrs. Roland Thompson will leave Sunday to spend the summer in the East. Dr. Thompson and his bride expect to stop at the medical convention in San Francisco on their way to New York.

THREE PERMITS
ISSUED BY DALE

With only one permit amounting to $45, Tuesday, and only three Wednesday, totaling $425, it looks like June would be another record-breaking month. May had an early slump, with only faint sounds of building issuing from the building inspector's office, and yet the month of May ended with more than $300,000 to its credit. Therefore, realtors expect the same thing to happen this time.

Permits were issued Wednesday to:
P. A. Fainot, 509 South Sixth street; garage $ 50
W. H. Twombly, Shelton St. 200
Maria Hahnga, Shelton St. 175

TO END YEAR WITH BANQUET

Woman's Club Will Entertain Tuesday, June 26

When the directors of the Woman's club met for luncheon at the Goodfellow's club, with Mrs. H. E. Woods, this week, they appointed committees and started plans for the banquet Tuesday, June 26. This will mark the closing of the club year and will be an elaborate affair. Husbands will be invited.

Plans were also made for the reception for the new members for Tuesday afternoon at the clubhouse. Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. Roy Pendell are the members of the reservation committee. Mrs. Kate Thimman is chairman of the program committee. Mrs. C. H. Wilson, chairman of the tea committee, will be in charge of the menu for the banquet.

BECKNER SURVEYS
LAND TRACT OF
6,400 ACRES

Lays Out Town Site Near Fresno for Realtors

Fred Beckner is expected to return to the city Friday evening from a trip in the north. He has been surveying a new town site half way between Fresno and Hollister, where the Community Investment company have 6,400 acres.

The finding of oil in this region is expected to bring a settlement of people. Judge Shelton and John Parish are also interested in the project.

Clean-up Week
Observed at School

Even the god of measles must have heard it was Clean-up week in the Luther Burbank school, for measles are prevalent and many of the children are absent. But for those who are in school the week is one during which special attention is paid to cleanliness.

Mrs. Aitken, in observance of the week, wrote the following poem on the blackboard for the children, that all might be continually reminded of the week:

"Clean up our faces, hands and finger nails;
Clean up our floors and desks and lunch pails;
Let us keep our house in splendid style,
And greet each other with a smile."

Advice is as plentiful as good examples are scarce.

MEDICAL ASSNS. TO MEET TO STUDY
CHILD HEALTH

Dr. A. E. W. Yale Will Attend Notable Convention of Medics

Dr. Elmer Thompson and Dr. A. E. W. Yale have received programs concerning the medical convention in San Francisco. This July will see the first international conference on child health education sponsored by committees of the National Education association, the American Medical association, the American School Hygiene association and the American Child Health association.

In speaking of this, an editorial in the June "Survey Graphic" has said:

"Perhaps some of us are old enough to have forgotten, or young enough to have never heard of that little girl who came to school one day with a note to her teacher asking, 'Please do not tell Grace about her insides; it ain't polite.'"

"But a generation of Graces have been led through the arid stretches of grammar school physiology and if the emphasis now is swinging away from insides to outside—teaching Grace how tall and how heavy she should be and why she should drink milk and play outdoors and sleep 10 hours with the windows open—it is not for reasons of etiquette, but pedagogy."

"In the whole effort to change the connotation of 'health' from a mere negative absence of disease to a positive enjoyment in the use of mind and body, nothing is more significant than this rapidly growing movement to teach children the few simple maxims of health and train them in the every-day habits which represent the summation of experience and research in its achievement."

This convention will be the first time that the state will be hosts to the national and international medical societies. Formerly the city in which the sessions were held bore the cost of entertainment.

Dr. Yale plans to leave Burbank June 21.

A very good educational program has been arranged with notable speakers from all parts of the country, who will speak on all phases of medical interests. The social side of the convention includes golf tournaments, auto trips, short cross-country tours, luncheon on Mt. Diablo, a drive on the skyline boulevard, dinners, banquets at various hotels.

President and Mrs. Ry Lyman Wilbur of Leland Stanford university, will give an "at home" and an organ recital in the chapel. Guests will be taken to the Naval station at Mare Island. There will be a Jinks at the Bohemian club. Governor Friend Richardson will speak at the opening session.

HOSPITAL PLANS
SHOW FACILITIES

Architect's plans for the large addition to the hospital of Dr. Thompson show that Burbank will soon be able to furnish a more modern hospital than any town much larger. The waiting rooms, and elevator floors will be of tile and the entire structure will be of fireproof concrete.

Private rooms will be fitted with baths and verandas. The beds will be such that they can be moved out upon the private veranda. There will be a roof garden for the patients to look out over the valley.

There will be the very latest of every sort of equipment. X-ray machines of all kinds, apparatus for electric diagnostic work, for light apparatus and hydro-therapy treatments.

There will be 35 bedrooms. The new addition will be three stories high. The entrance way will be of Doric architecture. There will be a large reception hall off of which opens the business office. The walls and floors will be of white tile.

HAND-PAINTED BOUDOIR SLIPPERS
Boudoir slippers of old blue leather shaped like Chinese shoes are hand-painted across the front.

'PEGGY' PROMISES TO AMUSE HER AUDIENCES

Next Community Play Has Interesting Climaxes and More Intending Characters

EAGLE ROCK, June 7.—It has been definitely decided to present "All of a Sudden Peggy," the next community play, on the 28th and 29th of this month. The first rehearsal went smoothly and the play promises many clever and humorous highlights which should carry it over the footlights to the audience with marked success. It is especially appropriate in these days when mothers are made up by art to appear so charming that a young man might easily fall into the snare of the golden lights in the head of his best girl's mother even before he realized just where lay the charm which made him such a frequent guest at her home.

Of course that isn't the plot, but nevertheless, it presents a similar situation. Of course Peggy's mother herself was more inclined to match-making for her daughter than she was to "vamping" for herself, but leave it to "All of a Sudden Peggy" to know how to climb over the bumps of difficulty to get what was wanted. And as for being "married off," Peggy's mother learned that the tables are sometimes turned.

And of course, that isn't all the plot either, so no one will really grasp the cleverness and finesse with which Peggy cleans up the amusing situations, until he sees the play on the 28th or 29th and laughs the way out of it for himself.

KINDERGARTENERS COMMUNITY PLAY STUDENTS PROUD OF THEIR ART GALLERY

Central School Children Will Have Annual Party on Friday Morning

EAGLE ROCK, June 7.—On Friday morning at 10:15, mothers, and other persons interested, will have an opportunity to visit the kindergarten classes at Central school and hear the little tots sing their "Welcome, Merry Sunshine," and many other songs of children. They will also see them in actual class instruction and be able to better understand the course of study and play through which the younger children are put before entering upon their regular schooling.

The kindergarten classes have been drilled in a little Maypole dance, and they have many interesting little games which they will play while parents and friends visit their class room.

This is a day which all the smaller children look forward to as the time when mother can see them at the games which they have so eagerly rushed home to tell her about day after little day. It is an annual affair, which the kindergarten call their "party." All mothers who have time are urged to attend the festivities.

MRS. BUMSTEAD-LEIGH TO SHOW
AT ELSINORE

Community Players Have Opportunity to Exhibit One of Most Popular Productions

"Mrs. Bumstead-Leigh," a comedy of the cleverest type, which was presented by the Community Players of Eagle Rock here a few months ago, will be produced by the original Eagle Rock cast at Elsinore, in November. Mrs. E. Lowry Fischer, capable director of the local players, takes the role of Mrs. Bumstead-Leigh and with the splendid support of the other members of this talented cast has no difficulty in keeping her audience convulsed with laughter.

The production will be put on at Elsinore Hot Springs under the auspices of the Women's club there. This is the first play which the Community Players have been asked to present outside of the immediate locality to Eagle Rock, and as it still holds a position as one of the most popular ever presented here, despite the several excellent cast productions recently, there is no doubt but that it will prove a splendid recommendation for the work being carried on in this section.

10 NEW POSTS
FOR WAR VETS

[By Associated Press]

OAKLAND, Calif., June 7.—The Department of California and Nevada, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, instituted Post 1035, Los Angeles, California, recently. This completes the organization of ten posts during the last year. New posts in Tonopah, Nev., Bakersfield, Santa Barbara and Hollywood, California, will be instituted prior to the department encampment, June 21 at Sacramento, it is announced.

If Itemized Statements Are Presented at Once

The Community Players organization is desirous of having all outstanding bills against it sent in as soon as possible, so that arrangements can be made to pay them off at once.

Any small amounts, or larger sums which the Community Players owe for services of any kind rendered them during the past productions will be taken care of at this time if full statements, in detail, are presented at once.

If bills are not ready for them now, there is a liability that they will be held over longer until the bills which are presented promptly are cleared for. A statement regarding the fact that all debts will be paid upon receipt of the detailed accounts was sent out some time ago, but as yet few of the bills in full have been sent in.

Mrs. Koen yesterday was advised of her appointment, which was conferred upon her during her absence from the last meeting.

The club is planning to publish a book of original primary and kindergarten songs, and several talented Eagle Rock persons interested in this work will be represented in the work.

Exhibit of Year's Work Contains many Excellent Drawings

EAGLE ROCK, June 7.—"All Tommy needs is a little training and I'm sure he would be a real artist. You should just see the drawings he makes at school. They're so superior to the average." How often have mothers been guilty of this or similar statements regarding the efforts of their young offspring. And not infrequently are they quite justified in their pride. An exhibition of the splendid work which the children of all the Eagle Rock schools have done this season in their art courses is hung in the Central school. This representative showing contains some really worthwhile exhibits of water color, cut-out, poster, and various other types of drawing and painting work done in the Eagle Rock schools.

The students, as well as their parents, take pride in walking down the long halls and seeing many pieces of their work which they labored painstakingly over to get the proper effect. And they are more than desirous of having their parents see what they have accomplished. So Miss Jordan, supervisor of the art department, requests that parents who find time come in while the drawings are on exhibition any time until the 15th of this month.

The children have made posters advertising the exhibits and merchants are giving them a prominent place in their show windows this week.

A pamphlet setting forth the use and importance of art training in the schools to the child has been published and will be presented to every visiting parent.

THE TRIUMPH OF LAW

A ferocious murderess after escaping to foreign soil, recently was placed in the penitentiary at San Quentin, probably to remain for the rest of her life. Any modification of this course could not be regarded as in accord with her deserts. The fact is being used as a text for editorial asseverations that crime cannot evade punishment. Unhappily this is not true. Crime does evade punishment, so far as human statutes are concerned. Whether there is torment inflicted by remorse, whether the consciousness of guilt, and the fear of capture constitute a penalty, is another matter. So far as the law goes many criminals are undetected. If apprehended and known to be guilty, through the tricks and devices of lawyers, the pliability of courts, the foolish clemency of parole boards, they are freed, and often resume their evil vocations. Indeed, the case of this woman, the frustration of her attempt to avoid prison, form an exception, and must so be regarded. It is not typical.

Any one who has enough interest in the subject to draw a lesson from the records of recent crime, knows that in Los Angeles alone there have been a large number of crimes of violence, including murder, the perpetrators of which have not been caught or even vaguely recognized. There have been numerous instances in which they have been caught, only to slip from the clutch of justice, not because their innocence had been established, but because of technical loopholes, or because of stupid or corrupt jurors. The county has spent many thousands of dollars in trial of accused persons concerning whose guilt there was no shadow of doubt, and given up the task as impossible of accomplishment.

Nobody but a fool could contend that crime pays. It cannot be that there is real joy or sense of real triumph in being a criminal even though lucky enough to baffle the law for a time. On the other hand the experience of the woman in question stands out as almost unique. She was caught, but at large and unknown, are many of kindred stamp.

THE GOLD DOOR KNOB

The son of a Chicago ragpicker is said to have embarked in the business of bootlegging at what may be termed the psychological moment. At any rate it was at a time when the prohibition forces were but poorly organized, and the traffic might be carried on with comparative safety. Early in the game, it is probable that he learned how to procure and to vend spurious liquors. The people with whom he dealt knew that they were breaking the law, and partly in self-protection were ready to protect the bootlegger. Of course he charged them anything he chose to ask, and being a simple lot, they paid it. The result was that the bootlegger grew rich. He had money in abundance, but lacked intelligence, which might have been useful as a balance wheel. He proceeded to erect himself a mansion, fantastic in its gaudy splendor. The door knobs of the mansion led to his undoing.

Curious persons took note of the circumstance that the knobs were gold. It seemed incongruous to them that the son of a rag-picker should be indulging so expensive a fancy. Finally the police, or somebody in authority, turned one of the gleaming knobs and walked in. Brief research disclosed the fact that the source of all this glitter of magnificence was bootlegging. So they arrested the proprietor of the gold knobs, and placed him where the fastenings of the doors were of stronger metal.

Doubtless the experience will be a lesson to the bootlegger, but it ought to impress upon his patrons a sense of their own folly. They had been buying counterfeit stuff, to the risk of life and health. They had bought it in such quantity as to enable the poison merchant to gold-knob his mansion. In other words, they belong to the class of which one specimen is born each minute; possibly two each minute now that bootlegging flourishes.

Scientists announce that they have found proof that there was once a land connection between Asia and North America. This revelation is interesting, but the ordinary citizen will have to be excused if he fails to get much excited about it.

Danger lurks in the surf at many points along any ocean coast. The undertow has won a number of victims this season. It seems odd that swimmers are ready to rush in without any knowledge of the forces that may be below the placid surface, ready to seize and overpower them.

D'Annunzio was to visit Paris by airplane, and the next thing known about him he was flying around over Spain. The poet is a spectacular person, never quite happy unless being talked about.

There is no uncertainty about the government decision that alien ships may not bring liquors into ports of the United States. Of course there will be some complications, but the situation demanded that the bull be taken by the horns, so to speak, and it has been taken.

A small plane able to fly seventy-five miles on a gallon of gasoline gives promise of uplifting the whole race.

We always feel sorry for a naturally talkative woman who has an impediment to her speech.

Misery loves company—but it's tough on the company.

SHREWD ADVERTISING

Advertising for a salesman, a really dealer stipulated that the successful applicant must have red hair. In this he manifested a certain shrewd knowledge of the value of publicity. Much discussion has been occasioned, and the advertisement repeated in substance hundreds of times without the addition of expense.

There is a sort of legendary belief that red hair indicates the possession of the quality generally characterized as pep. Probably it is a theory only. There may, however, be something in it. Perhaps it indicates specific tendencies, but this is unlikely. The human color scheme seems as a rule to relate to the surface alone. Where the dark haired or the extremely blonde differ in mentality, and so in their reactions, it is probable that racial traits are being displayed. The Norse, with flaxen locks is in many respects unlike the ebon haired native of the south of Europe. The inequality is not due to this lack of hirsute similarity. The color of the hair is due to climate and manner of living, and the same influences have moulded mind and body. There have been haired men and women of distinction. That the ratio of the number to the total population, ever was greater than the ratio of red hair to other kinds of thatching, it would be difficult to cite proof.

But the attitude towards the red head has changed greatly in a generation. Years ago the red haired lad had to fight, for he would be called "sorrel-top" or "brick-top," and that meant a war. Perhaps it was the drill of fighting that developed the peculiar alertness and energy that the really dealer is trying to attach to his business.

LIFE'S IRONIES

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

"Life's a unique gift from somebody, no doubt about that."

That closing line from the dramatization of "Rain," Somerset Maugham's remarkable story of the South seas, came to me this morning as I was looking over the news of the day.

There is a general impression abroad that it is our duty to be happy and oceans of black ink are daily wasted by whoop-it-up writers telling us how to attain that state of bliss known as happiness. Is it easy?

Well, here are a few of the things I've just read:

Samuel Goldwyn records in his series of fascinating articles about screen stars that Charlie Chaplin has periods of the blackest possible depression. Nobody knows why; he just faces the unfathomable void back of what we know as life, and wonders. He has fame and money and could not doubt have about any variety of love he chose, but there is that which forces and focuses his attention on the inexplicable, the mutable, the inevitable and the blackness follows. What's the answer?

Then take the story of poor old Bill Hart. A determined woman loved him and faked a baby to try and make him love her. It raised no end of a rumpus for Bill, messed up his reputation for a time, added to his domestic infelicities and caused him to retire temporarily from the screen. Then the woman confessed to the fraud, but I think Bill Hart's interview on the subject is a marvel of bewilderment and helplessness, puzzled pain.

He has a baby that he loves and can't see, a world of admirers who sympathize, but that does not comfort him much, lots of money and a big ache beneath the second button of his vest. Poor old Bill Hart.

Featured on another page is the pathetic story of a 10-year-old boy who committed suicide because life was too painful to bear. His mother, seeing no reason why she should not follow her instincts, ran off with another man than her husband and children made fun of her son so that he played truant. His father beat him and the poor child laid down his tragic little life through the agency of his father's shotgun.

How could he be happy? He was too young for any kind of philosophy, but pain swept over him and he could not meet it.

What's the answer? Out of Spain comes our last example of fate's little ironies.

A famous composer died and the world was startled to discover that he had two dwarf sons whom he had kept prisoners all their lives. Vanity was stronger than humanity or justice and he saved the face at the expense of his unfortunate sons. Happy? How could he be? And, as to the sons, poor things, life had dealt them nothing but tragedy. Even now the authorities don't know what to do with them.

This is not a pessimistic wall; it's only a comment on the news of the day and it ought to console many ordinary mortals who feel that they have been selected especially for the griddle.

"Life's a unique gift from somebody, no doubt about that."

Trying to beat the game may add zest to living, but it can't deliver us from the little ironies incident to being alive.

Accommodations is spelled with two c's and two m's.

"What Shall It Be?"

Will would have been the right word. Undoubtedly, the desire of the advertiser only was to predict, in which case shall was the wrong word.

"We will move to our new building upon completion of alterations."

"We will" is a promise to the public. "We shall" is simply an assertion about the future, which is all the advertiser intended to express.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

The salesman came in. Sat him down in a chair. His eye was alight with purpose.

With the latest methods of the correspondence school he fixed his eye upon the editor of this Listening Post.

The battle was about to begin.

Again he transfixed the editor with his glittering eye.

Marshaled his facts in his mind.

Prepared for the assault of the financial citadel of the editor.

Which is not a large citadel.

A very modest one.

Having transfixed the editor and gathered his forces for the attack, the salesman began it.

Not warily, stealthily and with stratagem. But boldly, noisily and bravely.

As battles are won by courage and daring. For what can an editor do when he is transfixed with the glittering glance of the correspondence school salesman?

"Do you want to make a lot of money?" That was the first gun of the attack.

A big gun, to be sure. One to warn you that the battle was beginning.

It might even win the battle at the first gunfire.

And it might not.

Having plumped that question at the editor, the salesman waited for the inevitable surrender.

For it was a direct question. I will put it to you, Reader, right here: Do YOU want to make a lot of money?

If you say yes, then the battle with the world and the salesman is on.

So the salesman was defeated right at the outset.

And he retreated wondering. Wondering that any one could say honestly he did not want to make a lot of money.

To make it easily and quickly and without trouble or much expense.

Of course the editor would not have made a lot of money.

The salesman might have made some. Which the editor would have paid.

And charged finally to profit and loss.

But—Did you ever notice how much trouble comes to many people who want to make a lot of easy money?

So the salesman was defeated right at the outset.

And he retreated wondering. Wondering that any one could say honestly he did not want to make a lot of money.

To make it easily and quickly and without trouble or much expense.

Of course the editor would not have made a lot of money.

The salesman might have made some. Which the editor would have paid.

And charged finally to profit and loss.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

All readers must have noticed discussion concerning the adjustment of science and religion so that there shall remain no conflict between the two. There have been learned theses on the theme. Able pulpitarians have given their views. In these they have coincided with the ablest men of science.

It is plain to any unbiased observer that the laws with which the scientist deals, the fundamentals of his work, his research and his conclusions, are immutable. The proof of their integrity appeals to the senses. In their presence much of the structure built up of dogma vanishes. The observing intelligence beholds it fading from sight. Between science and the theology defended by Bryan, there is irreconcilable conflict; but it is curious how little this matters; how remotely it bears relationship to the subject.

The teaching that this globe is but a few thousand years of age stands at a level with the teaching that it is not a globe, but is flat. When the big men of religion and the big men of science, the two classes merging, as they do, meet to adjust apparent differences, they have no occasion for considering the Bryan type.

In the workings of the universe so far as revealed; in the development of life and mind, so far as comprehended, there is discerned a measureless purpose and an intelligence transcending the human scope of thought. Science shows the world created by processes requiring millions of years, but by a plan as definite and fixed as though it had taken shape on the instant at the expression of the divine will. And scientists reverence the God that has wrought these wonders. Science cannot do without God. "If God did not exist," wrote Voltaire, "it would be necessary to invent Him."

Thus science is a demonstration of God. It is not the enemy of religion. It defeats certain points of a theology that has divided worshippers into many jarring sects. If it destroys the basis of cherished creeds, it affords a foundation for a creed that might embrace all humanity.

Funny folk, these who think themselves guided by the stars. A recent example was afforded by two students of the occult, who decided that destiny had made them mates. They found also that in former incarnations they had played together, and had set up housekeeping in ages away back. To clinch the matter, each had a mole on the left shoulder, the brand of the gods.

So they renewed century-old memories by marrying again. In a few months they were in divorce court each with a tale of woe, and each tale apparently the truth.

Perhaps it would be a good plan for them to have the moles amputated.

Mrs. George, city mother of Pasadena, has provoked adverse criticism by denouncing the practice of forcing men to marry girls betrayed by them. She will get no similar criticism in this column, for here exists the belief that she is wholly right.

The betrayed girl suffers enough without being sentenced to either a life time of misery, or having to sue for separation or become known as a deserted wife.

Mrs. George thinks that the man should be made to support the girl, and so he should. But usually his presence would be irksome to her, and his protection worse than none. If he marries her in all likelihood it is with the idea of leaving her and sneaking away. Such marriage is a mockery, and involves no benefit to any concerned, save the man whom it may enable to evade law.

From time to time gentlemen posing as naval experts retire the battleship from the seas. They do this in order that it may escape destruction by the air fleet, or the submarine. They say it is out of date, but might make valuable junk.

Happily there are naval experts belonging to the navy, and they take a different view. As an agency of defense they place the battleship in the first line.

The murderer of a Los Angeles police officer is said to have agreed to plead guilty on condition that he shall escape the hanging he knows he deserves, and accept a life sentence.

Concerning the wisdom of one decision or the other, it might not be proper to advance an opinion. The fact has to be admitted that although the prisoner has confessed, and there is no shadow of doubt that he committed the crime, were he to go on trial there might be grave chances of a jury disagreement.

A life sentence is not considered by any one receiving it as meaning more than brief detention. No wonder it is craved in this instance.

Three brave swimmers were drowned last Sunday in attempting to rescue two women who had been seized by the undertow. It was very pitiful. The women were brought living to shore.

There are plenty of places and times along the beaches when swimming is safe. The swimmer of just ordinary ability is rash to go in until assured of the character of the waters just then. Such a swimmer might be courting almost sure death.

The swimmer does not risk himself or herself alone. Always in a group there will be some daring to expose themselves to danger to save anybody in distress. Surely these are worth considering.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

I've just been reading that governmental publication in which the man of thrift is defined:

"The man who saves 60 cents out of each dollar is a tightwad," says Uncle Sam. "But the man who saves 20 cents out of it is a man of thrift." To which I reply, in a general, rollicking, broadcasting sort of a way:

"Bunk!"

It isn't possible to lay down a general rule to fit all sorts and conditions of men. I know of an old Osage Indian who spends only $4000 out of his $40,000 income. He isn't a tightwad. He's a ward. That's all he can get. I know of another man who spends 100 cents out of every dollar. His burdens increase faster than his income. I would define the thrifty man in another way:

"The thrifty man is the man who does not throw away his money."

I give too much money in tips. I lack the moral courage to refuse to pay blackmail. Mrs. Pilgrim, bless her heart, shoots her spare money on hats and silk stockings. Both of us buy books without full thought. It is only the occasional volume that is worthy of being made a companion of the home.

Last year, for this reason and that, we had a terribly low streak of finance. For two months we cut out needless expenses. In that time we lived as well, we lacked no luxury, we did not deprive ourselves of anything except the profligate pleasure of throwing money at the little brides.

"Do you know why we Greeks get rich so fast?" a Greek boot-black once asked me. "It is because you Americans do not know how to keep your small change."

DO YOU KNOW THAT—?

Confucius, the great Chinese teacher, was born within seventy miles of the site of the recent kidnapping of Americans and some of that peaceful sage's numerous descendants may have been among the bandits.

A battle line 420 miles long and 20 miles wide will be established in New York in an effort to check the advance of the tree-destroying gipsy moth which will cost that state five and a half million dollars a year if it becomes general.

The increase in the colored population of the United States was only 6.5 per cent during the last 10 years, a smaller rate than ever before.

While oats are grown to a great extent in Western Europe, the United States leads the total production with slightly more than one-fourth of the world's crop.

A Michigan millionaire having married his accomplished cook, will now be under the necessity of hiring another.

KEEP YOUR EYES OPEN

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.
(Copyright, 1923, by The Associated Newspapers)

The other day I received from an industrial corporation a letter asking information about a young man who had applied for employment. In the letter occurred a phrase of suggestive significance to prospective employees in all sorts of occupations.

"What we want to get," the writer of the letter informed me, "is a young man of the right kind to learn the business. We want one who will work hard, and keep his eyes open for chances to be useful, and for such a one there should be ultimately a good opportunity."

Now, as a matter of fact, there is in every well-managed business firm a good opportunity for every employee who will make it a point to "keep his eyes open for chances to be useful." But it is precisely in this respect that many young employees—I am tempted to say the majority of young employees—fall short.

Many so far fall short that they not only fail to be alertly on the lookout for service-rendering opportunities, but rebel if these are unexpectedly offered them.

"What, me do that!" is their horrified exclamation, when requested to do something other than their routine work. "What do you take me for, anyway? I wasn't hired to do that."

Or if they do accept the opportunity, fearing loss of employment, they go about with a sad or sullen air, as though to say, "How badly used I am." Then, a little later, we find them complaining bitterly:

"This is no place to work in. They don't give a man a square deal. They don't even give him a chance to show what's in him."

The absurdity of this would be laughable were it not frequently tragic in its consequences to the complaining one. At best he is doomed to a life of non-accomplishment, and he is all too likely to degenerate gradually into an unemployable, a man nobody wants to hire on any terms.

Contrast the careers of those who not merely undertake willingly work they were not hired to do, but actually volunteer for such work. Continually the newspapers chronicle the ultimate triumphs of such men.

One day, it may be, they carry the story of the election as head of a big packing firm of a man who began as a checker in the mud of the stockyards. Another day they tell of the progress of a brakeman to the presidency of the railway company which gave him his first job.

Almost every day, in detail or by the announcement of some change in industrial management, the newspapers thus give testimony to the importance of a man's "keeping his eyes open for chances to be useful."

For always those who do rise in industry are men who have done this very thing. They have wanted to be as useful as possible, they have proved that they can be exceedingly useful, and successive promotions have been their reward.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

STRAW HATS AND HOW TO "PLAY" THEM

A straw hat is something a man puts on in the early spring to make him look silly until the first frost.

It is worn part of the time and chased the rest of the time.

The hatmakers change the models and designs each year, but have yet to invent one that will roll safely through heavy traffic.

There are people who say there is more exercise in a straw hat than in golf. In both games the "approach" is the most difficult.

The National Association of Straw Hat Makers has announced rules for straw-hat chasing. They follow:

1—The hat must be "teed" up as high as possible on the skull, so the wind can at all times get a fair shot.

2—Pulling the bonnet over the ears is considered poor sportsmanship. The old custom of keeping the straw hat in leash by means of a black tape running from the brim to the coat lapel was declared null and void by the rules committee of 1886.

3—The hat is considered to be "in play" the moment a wearer puts it on his head.

4—When the player feels his straw hat leave his head he shall cry "Fore!" and proceed to pursue it at once, the idea being to recover it in the least number of attempts or "shots."

5—A straw hat shall have the right-of-way over all taxicabs, private automobiles, trucks, surface cars, etc.

6—Both the straw hat and the traffic shall have the right of way over the straw hat owner.

7—A straw hat shall be considered playable, whether rolling, skimming, zooming, skidding, or in repose.

8—When a straw hat is in the following places it shall be considered as in the rough: (a) Between the forward and rear trucks of a surface car; (b) under a horse's hoofs; (c) in a puddle of water; (d) caught between the forward springs of an automobile; (e) on the radiator of a truck; (f) under the wheels of any vehicle; (g) in or partly in a sewer, ashcan, gas main, or open coal hole; (h) between the legs of a traffic policeman or under same; (i) caught in a tree or telegraph wires, etc.

9—A hat landing in any of the above places must be played from that spot, and the practice of kicking a hat from under a taxicab into the open and resuming play from the new position is forbidden.

WATER HAZARDS

1—Straw hats must be played regardless of water. Should the lid land in a water hazard the wearer must recover it and "play it out" from that point. Sitting in the puddle or trying to approach the hat on the hands and knees is considered poor form, and the best straw hat chasers never think of it.

2—The original hat must be played from a water hole. Under no circumstances shall a player discard the hat in the water and put a new one into play without a penalty.

"Can you tell me the way to Storington?" asked an English traveler in a motor car of the farmer boy.

"Dunno," the lad replied.

"Well, how can I get back to Storington?" the motorist asked.

"Dunno," was the reply again.

"Where, whereabouts is Rackham?"

"Dunno," for the third time.

"You don't know much about Sussex, do you?" said the motorist.

"Dunno, but then I aren't lost."

COME TO RAINBOW VALLEY SUNDAY, INVITATION

Special Sunday Bus Service Free to Prospective Buyers

Special bus service will be rendered Sunday to transport home-seekers to the land of promise, Rainbow Valley, which is located just 11 miles to the north of Glendale, where the jaws of the Big "Y" open wide.

Initial sales in gratifying numbers were made at the subdivision Sunday, under the supervision of Captain Stradling, general manager. In order to accommodate all those who wish to visit this delightful addition to the real estate offers in the vicinity of Glendale, four trips will be made by bus, beginning at 9 o'clock Sunday morning. One trip will be made at 11 o'clock, one at 1:30, and the other at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Reservations for seats should be made before Sunday if possible. This service is complimentary and it is expected that large numbers, who do not own their own cars, will welcome the opportunity of visiting Rainbow Valley. The Rainbow Valley office is located at the corner of Colorado and Brand boulevard, but reservations may also be made by telephoning Glen. 1702.

A continuous registration is being taken of those who wish a chance to win a model bungalow located at Rainbow Valley. Contrary to the general opinion that these registrations closed with the industrial exposition, there is still a chance for others to add their name to the list, which now contains thousands of names.

Those who visit Rainbow Valley will find representatives ready to receive them and show them the wonderful offers in property. The bus service is for Sunday only, but the property is shown any day in the week.

A huge oil painting of Rainbow Valley giving an exact idea of the contour and location of this favored territory, is to be seen at the Rainbow Valley office here. It is attributed to the skill of David Schwartz, well known landscape painter.

To reach Rainbow Valley from Glendale, drive through Montrose, along Michigan avenue to Tujunga Sunland, and on into the heart of the subdivision. Rainbow Valley is reached from Pasadena by driving through Flintridge, and on to Michigan avenue; and from Hollywood via Los Feliz boulevard into Glendale, and then by the route outlined above.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

"IF"—AT THE CROSSING

(With Apologies to Rudyard Kipling.)

If you can keep your feet while all about you
Are losing theirs in crossing o'er the street.
If you can keep your head while drivers flout you
And call you bonehead, dumbbell, with much heat.

If you can run and skip and slide and slither
Among the trucks and cars and keep your head

While chauffeurs hurl hot epithets to wither
Your soul with their grim wrath while seeing red.

If you can jump and dodge and race and flounder
Above, below, about and to one side;
When woman puts her hand out, if around her
You can dodge quick enough to save your hide.

If you can guess what some one on the highway
With some high powered car is going to do,
Then you may linger longer on life's byway
Provided that the guess you make is true.

If you can see two ways at once and wonder
What chance you have and make no grim mistake;

If you can stand there firm against the thunder
Of horns and whistles and the scream of brake

And clang of bell and if you are not lazy
And when a thin space shows if you will run,

If you can do all this you'll be a daisy,
And what is more, you may grow up, my son.

BLANKET LEVY FOR BOOSTING

[By Associated Press]

YREKA, Calif., June 7.—Inclusion of a proposition to levy a tax of 10 cents per $100 for advertising the advantages of Yreka may be made at an election to be called in the near future to decide upon a bond issue for municipal purposes, according to plans of Mayor Roy J. Shoen. Mayor Shoen says everyone in the community benefits from such advertising, and he believes, everyone should pay his pro rata share of the expense.

HOME-MADE PINCUSHIONS

When making pin cushions insert a piece of cardboard through the center. It will prevent losing the needle in the cushion and will also keep the cushion in shape.

MILLIONS FOR HIGHWAY WORK

[By Associated Press]

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., June 7.—A total of $37,000,000 will be expended for maintenance and reconstruction of state and county roads of California during the fiscal years 1923-24 and 1924-25, according to an announcement made here recently by the California State Automobile Association.

The lady protested when her husband started to pilot her away from the first floor.

"I positively can't and won't climb stairs. Haven't we orchestra seats?"
"No, my dear."
"I won't budge."
"My love, it's just a few steps."
"I won't occupy seats upstairs."
"These are in a mezzanine box."
"Oh."

UNIV. OF ILLINOIS CONFERS DEGREES ON LOCAL FOLKS

Corinne Kelso of Glendale and David Wilson of Eagle Rock Honored

URBANA, Ill., June 7.—Many states other than Illinois will be represented among the 1623 who will receive degrees from the University of Illinois at the 53d annual commencement of that institution on Monday, June 1. This number includes all colleges and departments at both Urbana and Chicago. Some 225 more degrees will be conferred by the University this year than last. Included in the above degrees are 159 advanced—Master of Art and Doctor of Philosophy—granted to those persons who have pursued study and research work more than the required four years.

Corinne Marie Kelso of Glendale, Ruth Kelso of Los Angeles, and David Dill Wilson of Eagle Rock, will receive degrees this year.

Commencement exercises start Friday with class day. On Saturday the annual alumni day celebration, when several thousand old grads return to the campus for a brief visit, will focus the attention of grads and visitors. On Sunday the baccalaureate address will be given at 4 in the afternoon by Bishop C. P. Anderson, D. D., of Chicago.

The fifty-second annual commencement takes place Monday morning at 10:30. Dr. David Kinley, president of the University, will be the speaker. The degrees will be conferred immediately at the close of his address.

ATTRACTIVE OUTFIT

A short black velvet coat with collar and cuffs of white ratine is especially smart when worn with a bright printed skirt.

A girl who sits and waits for a man to propose must feel a good deal like the cat that is watching a rat hole.
